

Nov. 3, 2008 (#188)

Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:

Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 3, 2008:

Police and Military Combat Vehicles:

"Police Explanation Treats the Public as Fool,
Why, an Armoured Vehicle is Just a Tool,
Intel's vPro is a Little Bit Sleazy,
Enabling Agencies' Access that More Easy,
Global Warming is Shot Down in Flames,
From the Melted Mass Comes Climate Change,
The Religion of Science Keeps Changing Mood,
For Manic Depressives, All Change is Good"
© Alan Watt Nov. 3, 2008

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 3, 2008 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

www.cuttingthroughthematrix.com

www.alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

"Code of Silence" by Bruce Springsteen

There's a code of silence that we don't dare speak
There's a wall between us and a river so deep
And we keep pretending that there's nothing wrong
But there's a code of silence and it can't go on

Is the truth so elusive, so elusive as you can see that it ain't enough baby
To bridge the distance between you and me
There's a list of grievance 100 miles long
There's a code of silence and it can't go on

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November the 3rd, 2008. Newcomers should look into www.cuttingthroughthematrix.com, that's the web site and download as many of the previous talks that I've put up there. Work your way through them and you'll learn an awful lot about the real world and how it's managed. It's not governed really, it's managed. I try and tie it together for you as best I can with my experience of reading SO MANY books. I think I'm almost blind with them. What you'll find is, nothing happens in complete secrecy. Many of the big players down through history have published their own works on the world they're bringing in. The big foundations do it too and the members of the big foundations have written hundreds and hundreds of books on the future. They're always planning the future and making it happen; brining in it in the way they planned. That's how the world is really run. Also look into www.alanwattsentientsentinel.eu and download as many transcripts as you want. You can print them up, read them, or pass them around to your friends.

That's the key to everything when you eventually clue in to how the world is run, you'll find it's always been planned. You plan the future if you are in the REAL government, the ones behind the PHONY ones we think we vote in. We really don't vote them in, we vote the previous bunch out, we're so sick of them, because they never do what we think they're supposed to do. So, we always live in hope. We have an optimism part in the brain and this is known too. A little part of the brain gives you optimism and that can be encouraged to be ego-syntonic so you always look on the bright side and therefore you never learn. You keep voting the new crooks in and you get fed up after 4 or 5 years and vote them out and hope for the best with the next bunch. It's like a revolving casino or the door to a casino. That's what it's like.

The world is run by much, much bigger powers and those in power, to retain power, MUST ALWAYS CONTROL THE FUTURE. George Orwell started off his book, 1984 on that very topic... about who controls the past, controls the future. That's how it truly is. For the last 50 years or so, ego-syntonic behaviour was truly promoted from the top down. They also gave the people more leisure time to promote the ego-syntonic behavior and gave them television and movies, etc. People truly spend a big part of their life living in FICTION. Never realizing, that which they're enjoying has deeper aspects to it and has deeper purposes. NOT for your entertainment but actually to program you into accepting events and situations and a society that hasn't quite appeared on the horizon yet. It's called PREDICTIVE PROGRAMMING. Everything that you see goes through committees to make sure they have the right content of programming in it. That's why TV programs are called PROGRAMS. They're meant to PROGRAM YOU. When we're living in an ego-syntonic society, just playing and being happy, it takes me back to what Aldous Huxley talked about. He said in his speech at Berkeley, "What's wrong with making people happy?" Now, he was talking in the context of using drugs or even putting implants in their brain to keep them happy... stupid, ignorant... but happy. We're almost at THAT stage now. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. The matrix really is the big reality that you've been conned into believing exists. You're told that there are myriads of bureaucrats and politicians and experts above you that deal with all the big problems and they convince you, of course, that the problems are MASSIVE AND TOO COMPLEX FOR YOU TO UNDERSTAND. They give you terms like global warming and how they have to deal with it and carbon dioxide output, etc. All these big, abstract concepts that really are bogus but that doesn't matter. The whole idea is to keep you always in a state of being afraid and anxious of your own life. They gain power and keep power over you by doing so and making you do ridiculous things like PAY THEM to deal with these abstract concepts, as if money could make it all go away. That's how simple it is. We never ask where the money goes. We don't realize that the big system that runs us, ABOVE US, is one big, corrupt con game and it's not meant that money goes to what they say it goes to.

It's like the big charitable foundations and over the years, we've see many exposés about where the money goes to within charities and often they found out that less than 5 cents per dollar ever went to the actual cause it was prescribed for. We saw after the big tsunami deal that when every government in the West matched dollar for dollar, for charity, for charitable contributions, across the world. Every country did it. It ended up being billions of dollars. They then put Bush Sr. and Bill Clinton in charge of the money and that's the last we heard of it. We never see any follow up except the follow ups on the very countries that were supposed to get the money and there they are, years later, still picking up the pieces of corrugated iron to patch their roofs up on their old houses, putting it all together themselves. That's how the world is really run.

It's one big PIRATE corporation at the top. The thing is, for the pirates, you see the pirates BELIEVE that their job is to do exactly what they're doing... to plunder the populous below, the commoners, the simple people, the SHEEP. They do give themselves good titles like Good Shepherds. They guide the sheep and so on. And they do guide the future. There's do doubt whatsoever on that. A PERSON WHO DOESN'T PLAN THEIR OWN FUTURE, WILL HAVE SOMEONE ELSE PLAN IT FOR THEM. Now you have a whole world, not just nations, but a whole world being PLANNED and the plans are implemented and seem absolutely ridiculous to the FEW people in the world who still have conscious and thinking and functioning, reasoning minds. Most people don't think too deeply about anything. They learn by osmosis... from the television. Rather sad but true.

We've watched the implementation of complete, total martial law all across the planet. The same martial law across the planet that came out INSTANTLY, pretty well, after 9/11. We forget, in some of the countries, that these martial law bills were actually put through in 1998 and other British countries in the Commonwealth BEFORE anything had happened. That happened in Canada. Alan Rock put through the giant omnibus crime bill. Nothing was going on at the time. In the mid '90s, suddenly they were having DISASTER workouts in little towns across Canada and other countries in Europe even, to do with possible man made disasters or natural disasters using fire departments, military police and so on and actors acting the part of injured people. They never had these scenarios carried out during the entire Cold War when, supposedly, we were in fear of our lives every day of being nuked. Suddenly, after the Soviet Union was down, they had all these practice drills, all preparing for a future that was already planned. No doubt, 9/11 was planned in there too, long ago, to bring in the big, totalitarian society. The way it's SUPPOSED TO BE. It's not evolving that way. It's supposed to be this way according to those at the top. It's simply too untidy the way it is.

Who wrote about how untidy this all was? And how the society should be planned? Big players who are propagandist for this organization were writing about it at the beginning of the 1900s... and working for it too. Like HG Wells. He said it was so ridiculous and actually it is, but I go off on a different tangent from Wells, on how it should possibly be. Wells said a truth. He said, so many people go into the same school system. They all emerge competing for the same few jobs and mainly in private business and even in small business, and shop keepers and so on. He said, how many bicycle repair men do you need? He really thought it was just too untidy. He thought that there should be an agency that DECIDED WHAT YOU'D BE TRAINED IN, AT SCHOOL. The Soviet system, you see, appealed to him. He went over, along with many of his peer group, to visit the early Soviet system. He was very impressed by it. So much so, he left his son to study with Pavlov and he became a zoologist, this particular son.

Wells was not a lone wolf. These were not his ideas. These were the ideas already extant in the societies and agencies he belonged to, like the Fabian Society. We see school to work. That's again, the Soviet idea, that's happening too already.

To the thinking mind, much of what's being implemented today, seems very bizarre, but it's not bizarre at all to the average person who does not think. They just accept whatever comes their way. They're too busy being happy and playing, as Huxley said. Again, back to what I said before the break, I said what Huxley did say at Berkley, "What's wrong with making people happy?" And he meant, BY ANY MEANS POSSIBLE, even if it meant stimulating the centers in the brain to make them happy. Now, technically, if you're happy in the middle of insanity, you yourself are insane. But that didn't matter. It was the object of being happy that was important. A happy population will allow anything be done to it and they will not react... in other words, THEIR SELF PRESERVATION HAS BEEN DESTROYED.

When you see lock downs in schools everywhere, where as children get patted down going IN to schools, when they get LOCKED IN their schools during lunch time, as was reported in Britain recently. They want to literally force the children to eat what they think is PROPER FOODS, therefore they're going to lock down the schools for lunch time. When you see all this kind of thing happening, when you see armored vehicles and your cops buying ARMORED VEHICLES, what on earth do you think these things are all about? What they're for?

I've mentioned the same report many times, from the Department of Defence, their big think tank, on their 30 years of intensifying riots starting around the year 2010. That's what they foresee in the NATO countries. That's what the Department of Defence sees coming down. WHAT ON EARTH IS GOING TO MAKE ALL PEOPLE PANIC AND RIOT? At the moment, they're quite happy and still playing and dressing up for Halloween, etc. Something that used to be reserved for children, very, very young children. Now the adults all do it. What on earth would make them stop wearing their costumes and being happy and RIOT? Well, it's because there's going to be crisis after crisis. We're in a period of crisis creation. The purpose of crisis creations is just like the purpose of war. IT'S TO CHANGE SOCIETY. Professor Carroll Quigley mentioned that. That was the real purpose of war.

Now, in Canada, it's always had the reputation of being a fairly quiet country. Quiet as far as social disturbance goes. You'll have your usual things, the drunks and so on and domestic disputes and all that kind of stuff - especially when BOOZE is the most heavily promoted DRUG out there - promoted from the top and by all the big corporations and ball games, etc. It's also one of the most damaging on the physical system. The spin offs are too numerous to mention to do with the fallout in society.

When you see the police buying armored vehicles, and remember too, we're in an age supposedly where we're bankrupt. We're all forgetting, about 2 weeks ago, we were all bankrupt supposedly. Meanwhile the military is putting in orders for BILLIONS OF DOLLARS worth of new toys and so are the police. The police are the biggest purchasers of military equipment today. And they are getting all of their toys. Why do you think they're getting all of their toys? Why would SERVICES, that are supposed to be services responsible TO the public and EXIST on the sufferance of the public, be acting as though they're an independent body, with a wish list for Christmas, and they always get what they want. Why would they be getting all of these particular toys? This is an article from the Globe about British Columbia.

Armoured car being bought by the Vancouver police - say its not for riot control....

By Mobilizing Mouse on June 28, 2008 12:51 PM

From The Globe and Mail

BEARCAT

Vancouver police to get armour on wheels

ANNA MEHLER PAPERNY

June 25, 2008

The Vancouver Police Department is beefing up its fleet, and the new machine's no puny gizmo: The city has approved $345,000 for an armoured rescue vehicle (Alan: A rescue vehicle, change of the perception by the terminology.) that will act as a mobile ballistic shield.

I'll be back with more this after this break.

Hi folks, I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about how the police, the world over really, are just another arm now of the military. They have been given authority to do what they're doing regardless of how it appears to the public. The authority to become completely militarized and they ARE a military institution. They have the uniforms, they have the little ribbons that they wear for service etc. They have officers with spaghetti on their caps and their epaulets that they wear and dress uniforms and so on. The public are misled often by perceptions and PERCEPTIONS ARE ALTERED BY THE USE OF TERMINOLOGY OR PSYCHO-LINGUISTS, as they like to call it. I'm talking here about an article from The Globe about British Columbia. It's only one place that's buying these particular trucks, which really are armored vehicles, and this one here is $345,000. They call it a RESCUE vehicle, you see. An armored vehicle to me is an armored vehicle. Forget the rescue part.

Inspector Tony Zanatta of the Vancouver police emergency response team says the armoured car will let officers go where they couldn't go safely before. (A: Yeah. They could ram through houses with this. That's where they could go with it.) They will be able to approach armed suspects with vehicles and barricaded in houses, deal with bomb scares and transport wounded people out of dangerous situations without fear of being shot. (A: The only people who are in danger of being shot are the people at the other ends of the barrels of the police forces these days, these SWAT teams.)

(A: Now, here's how they phrase it to the public. This is what I really... what really gets my goat, as they say. It's the use of terminology, again the RESCUE vehicle right? I've seen the ones in Northern Ireland. These were armored vehicles. The reason they're armored is because they're doing something to the public which the public OBJECTS TO and therefore they'd retaliate to those inside. That's why they armor armored vehicles. That's why they have them in Afghanistan and places where those countries have been invaded by US and European troops. Here's what he says...) "It's not a tank, it's a tool. (A: Well, so is a flame thrower but I don't light my cigarette with it.) It's simply that. It's a shield, it's a ballistic shield that's mobile," he said.

Some police forces in U.S. cities - including Los Angeles and New York - use Lenco "BearCat" armoured vehicles, one of the options Vancouver is considering.

Critics fear the hulking trucks, versions of which are also used in active combat, would militarize the city streets and give police a tool for crowd control. (A: A tool for crowd control. What on earth, what kind of crowd control are we talking about here? Why would a crowd be attacking the police? What would the police be doing to the crowd to be attacked in the first place they'd be in fear of their lives? Think about that.) Insp. Zanatta said this is not the case.

(A: Now, here's the terminology he's using. Terminology that they're given by the marketing companies.) "That's sexy, but it's silly," he said. "Why would you do that? You don't move into a riot situation. That's not what the purpose of their deployment is."

The Vancouver Police Department's emergency response team deals with about 350 critical incidents a year. (A: Now, that's how they get called out but how many of them end up being critical?) Insp. Zanatta said he estimates the police will use the vehicle 50 to 100 times a year.

"This isn't some fancy toy (A: Well, I'd say so and at that kind of price too.); this is pretty much, now, a standard piece of equipment for emergency response teams." (A: Well, you know, not so long ago, emergency response teams did not exist as such. We forget that too. The whole move towards it, to get the public to accept what was COMING, was particular television shows like Hill Street Blues where they humanize SWAT teams working with the ordinary police. That's how they portrayed it to the public. Then they brought in the real things gradually across the Western world AFTER giving them a few years dosage of Hill Street Blues. Now, that's standard fair on television. There's lots of programs, TV, fictional reports like that, where they humanize... remember, everything you're shown on TV is propaganda ESPECIALLY TO DO WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT. Jacques Ellul went through the whole process of that in his book called Propaganda.)

The police department decided it needed a vehicle like this a couple of years ago, and it has taken until recently to convince the city of its value, (A: And it goes on and on and on. They also justify it by the fact that every other place is getting the same kind of thing, the same kind of vehicle. They'd be rather miffed, they'd be pouting if they didn't get theirs.) Insp. Zanatta said.

That's how it's put across. Well if they got them in Haiti, then well, we should have one too. Or if they had them in the Soviet Union, well, we should have one too. As though that rationalized it and made it correct. The public are so used to seeing movie after movie after movie of the future scenario with armored vehicles in the street and rubble that used to be standing houses in urban centers that they're already programmed for what's to come... through fiction. It's amazing, as I say, when we're supposed to all be bankrupt how they can just go ahead and buy and buy and buy all this kind of security equipment. It's mind boggling what's happening in the purchasing of security equipment and surveillance for TOTAL INFORMATION CONTROL. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I was going to read a lot of documents on MORE surveillance equipment that's coming out ALL AT THE SAME TIME ACROSS THE WESTERN WORLD, but there's TOO MUCH OF IT to even go through in an hour or so. SO much of it and the fact that it's all synchronized to come out at the same time, it tells you that this was in the works, in the planning long ago. It took LOTS of cooperation between governments to bring all of this new surveillance type of equipment in to being.

There's also lots of TOWERS going up across Canada and the States and Europe that are different from the usual cell phone towers. They're like big long poles about 50 feet high... they look like standing microphones with the sock on the end. And they have their own transformers and MASSIVE, MASSIVE heavy cables going into the base when you see them getting built. There's no ownership on them from say British Telecom or anything like that. There are just warnings on very high voltage. I suspect this is to do with THE TECHNOTRONIC WARFARE TECHNOLOGY that Brzezinski and others have talked about bringing into use. THE TECHNOLOGY THAT WILL MANAGE THE EMOTIONS AND THE MOODS OF PEOPLE AND MAKE THEM VERY PASSIVE IF REQUIRED. THEY CAN ALSO MAKE THEM VERY AGGRESSIVE IF THEY REQUIRED THAT TOO. I really do think that's what it's about because it's time now for the riots to start in a few years. They want to control the public and basically tranquilize them. They'll probably call them a CALMATIVE tower, since they love this world calmative. A CALMATIVE TOWER'S WORKING ON YOU.

Here's another item too, to do with the internet and how... I really am amazed at anyone who truly thinks they have anything secure and secret on the internet. It's never existed since it was given to the public. NEVER. Even before 9/11. The computers were set up, remember, and GIVEN to the public after being thoroughly tested by the military industrial complex, all through the cold war. It was given OUT to the public to GATHER INFORMATION ABOUT THE PUBLIC. Data collection.... predictability of every individual, that's essential for totalitarian systems. Here's an article from TGDaily.

Big Brother potentially exists right now in our PCs, compliments of Intel's vPro

Opinion

By Rick C. Hodgin

Wednesday, September 24, 2008 09:58

Opinion - Last week, Intel announced the third generation of its vPro Technology for business PCs. Comprised of CPU, motherboard and networking components, vPro is essentially a set of technologies which enable remote monitoring, maintenance and management in a PC. Intel bills these as tools useful for IT professionals, which they are. But shouldn't we be looking deeper into the potential threat of such technologies? (Alan: Then he goes on about the old way of doing it via OS and the new way, there's a new way, COVERT REMOTE ACCESS.)

Intel's preferred solution today is to have a PC equipped with an Intel Core 2-based processor, Q45 chipset and an 82567LM network chip. This combination of components allows covert remote access via something Intel calls vPro. And, it's built right in.

This combination of hardware from Intel enables vPro access ports which operate independently of normal user operations. These include out-of-band communications (communications that exist outside of the scope of anything the machine might be doing through an OS or hypervisor), monitoring and altering of incoming and outgoing network traffic. In short, it operates covertly and snoops and potentially manipulates data. (A: Then he goes on about vPro as a tool. Again, everything is a tool. Everything that's bad for you is a tool, it's used as a tool.)

vPro is a tool

vPro was created to be a useful tool for IT personnel. Remote access to the innards of a PC can be granted by bypassing a potentially crashed OS and any of its security and safety protocols which may or may not be operating at the time of the crash. And this new third generation just released now allows a PC user to press a few keystrokes, even in the midst a total operating system crash when not even the mouse pointer is responding. This sends a dispatch to IT indicating the user needs help. Interestingly, this also shows that the motherboard is monitoring all keystrokes all the time. But is that all vPro is doing?

Real Big Brother concerns?

Access to the machine through vPro is available via remote connection regardless of the machine's CPU state. It doesn't matter if it's turned on or off, what it's doing or who's using it. And this is where the concern comes in.

Since vPro operates on the main system bus via the Q45 chipset, and on the CPU via Core 2, and we now know that it monitors (at the very least) every keystroke, it theoretically allows access to not only every piece of hardware connected to the system bus, but also to every byte of memory currently in use (even while the machine is running). The motherboard provides access to all hardware including memory, the CPU to special software and compute abilities and communications allows it to send and receive behind the scenes.

In short, because of the type of components utilized to make vPro work (motherboard resources, processor resources and communications resources), a remote user could theoretically gain access to the entire system, covertly through vPro. And then it's just a matter of snooping through memory and hard drive files until whatever they're looking for is found. [Emphasis added.]

Well, you see, that's NOT a mistake. That's not a mistake. Of course, it's built in on purpose because the world we're going into is for TOTAL ACCESS and IT'S THE LAW, THAT EVERY COMPUTER MUST BE AVAILABLE FOR ACCESS REMOTELY BY SECURITY AGENCIES. You know that law was put in, in the '90s. ALL communications devices, including fax machines and telephones that were sold, had to have a special chip put in them from then on. People truly think they're still free and what's amazing too, is that they still put up all their data up on the internet, all their personal data. And the young generation's being encouraged that you don't want privacy. In fact, privacy's anti-social... put everything up on MySpace and they're doing it. What tyrant in history could have DREAMED of having this kind of power over people? It's incredible, absolutely, totally incredible. And the next phase as we know, is to put out a system in computers, that are technically just like telephones, all your data will be stored remotely. And it will also be used as a TOOL to keep YOU in place because if you're anti-social, meaning you've broken some rule, or whatever - not a law but a rule - then you won't have any access to any information. In the system that's coming up, it'll be essential TO HAVE the computer, completely, for all financial transactions and so on.

Here's an article from BBC News.

Microsoft to battle in the clouds

By Rory Cellan-Jones

Technology Correspondent, BBC News, Los Angeles

This goes on about the NEW SYSTEM of having remote servers which will handle ALL data and how convenient it will be. You won't need a hard drive with a certain limitation, it'll all be done FOR you. It also means, as we well know, is to make it EASIER for ALL SECURITY AGENCIES to have immediate access to all your data. That's really the point of it. I was going to read this but I won't even bother. You can look it up yourself. It's an interesting article but Microsoft's going to go into this in a BIG way. They see this as the way of the future... and I'm sure it is. I'm sure it was even DESIGNED that way before we were given the first, primitive computers. I say primitive because WE'RE DISHED OUT TECHNOLOGY THAT'S ALWAYS LONG OBSOLETE... compared to the stuff that they're using at the very, very top. It's always obsolete.

Here's another article I just wanted to touch on too before I take any callers.

74 Years Since Oct Snowfalls - Deprogramming Global Warming

Wise Up Journal

30.10.2008

By Gabriel O'Hara

The Daily Mail reports "snow falling on London", "the first time the capital has seen snow in October since 1934", "other areas of the South-East, including Hertfordshire, just 20 miles out of London, were covered in a thick blanket of snow."

The Register reported: As you can see, ice has grown in nearly every direction since last summer - with a large increase in the area north of Siberia. Also note that the area around the Northwest Passage (west of Greenland) has seen a significant increase in ice. Some of the islands in the Canadian Archipelago are surrounded by more ice than they were during the summer of 1980. NASA Marshall Space Flight Center and the University of Illinois, announced the Arctic ice extent was 30 per cent greater on August 11, 2008 than it was on the August 12, 2007.

"The American Physical Society, an organization representing nearly 50,000 physicists, has reversed its stance on climate change (Alan: Reversed it's stance. It's amazing how they can go completely one way and then completely the other, isn't it?) and is now proclaiming that many of its members disbelieve in human-induced global warming."

Al Gore has a few UN (A: United Nations) IPCC "experts", the majority of world politicians, the world bank/IMF, along with a large minority of ordinary people caught up in his message. Even George W. Bush says he believes in Global Warming (A: It's kind of like a religion. Do you believe in it?) but he wants developing nations to commit at the same time as developed nations. Unfortunately for those people a UK judge ruled Al Gores movie "an inconvenient catalogue of errors." The Guardian reported on the judge's ruling that the former U.S. vice president's "apocalyptic vision" had massive errors in all of it's main points, such as high sea levels rises and so on. Unfortunately for those people who have been duped by such propaganda and fortunately for humanity, our pockets, and freedom the climate has not cooperated with the "Man-Made Global Warming" theory. Perhaps that is why the slogan has changed to "Climate Change" (A: Have you noticed that too? They're not saying Global Warming so much because it's got a bad rap. But, you see, they want all the money and all the loot and ALL THE POWER with all the agencies they've got SET UP to rule us on Climate Change, so they're calling it... Climate Change not Global Warming. As it says in this article,) because the climate has never stop changing (A: Which is A TRUTH, you see. For those who've never thought about it, THAT'S a FACT.), but we are lead to believe we have to give up freedoms, and pay tax to try to stop it. Wikipedia states the following on Gores political climate "experts" the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), "The IPCC does not carry out research, nor does it monitor climate or related phenomena. A main activity of the IPCC is publishing special reports on topics relevant to the implementation of the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change" (A: In other words, they're all PAID FOR PROPAGANDA PURPOSES.)

Australian medical journal recommends, "parents to be charged $5000 a head for every child after their second, and an annual tax of up to $800. Couples who have more than two children should be charged a lifelong tax to offset their extra offspring's carbon dioxide emissions. "

Top rocket scientist and carbon accounting expert Dr. Richard Evans completely reversed his position on man-made Global Warming. The new ice cores show that in the past six global warmings over the past half a million years, the temperature rises occurred on average 800 years before the accompanying rise in atmospheric carbon. Which says something important about which was cause and which was effect, he said. Evans explained why he first went along with the agenda, "the evidence was not conclusive" [but] "soon government and the scientific community were working together and lots of science research jobs were created. (A: In other words, they went along with it for the money.) We scientists had political support, the ear of government, big budgets, and we felt fairly important and useful (well, I did anyway). It was great. We were working to save the planet." (A: And fill their pockets.)

When the Earth was warming from the 70's onwards so was every other planet in our solar system. When the Earth started to cool in recent years so did every other planet in our solar system. But you can't tax the sun. (A: How about taxing the Martians, eh?)

A few months after the Australian medical journal's tax on life recommendation the British medical journal recommends Chinese tyranny (western style), "explain to UK couples who plan a family that stopping at two children, or at least having one less child than first intended, is the simplest and biggest contribution anyone can make", "Investing in contraception would help in the fight against climate change."

It's amazing, how, again, the eugenicists have always PLANNED all these big CONS to convince the public to reduce our population. I was just reading an article on Europe. A big, massive foundation that works with POLICY for the Economic Union Parliament and apart from all the massive surveillance systems they bring in there and for EVERY INDIVIDUAL, EVERY CITIZEN, in Europe. It's just MIND BOGGLING what they're doing.

It was amazing even there, to see how they were using all of these terms, Global Warming and so on as a reason for reducing the population. They then went on to say that they'll have to MASSIVELY increase the immigration INTO Europe because the population of Europe is dwindling, very, very, very quickly. It's double speak, you see? The reason they want to bring a massive population INTO Europe, who are not having children, haven't been having children, enough children to PAY OFF the DEBT of Europe, the reason they're bringing in ALL the other countries into Europe, is to pay off that debt. So which is it? Are we rapidly declining in population or are we multiplying too copiously? Which one is it? It's all double speak, you see. Or in fact, does each and every one of us truly exist to SERVE THE ECONOMY? If you ask the economists, they'll tell you yes, that is your purpose. What a system. What an incredible system.

And the public don't know, NOR DO THEY CARE TO KNOW as you well understand as those of you who are getting frustrated by trying to get your message out to people you know and you're tearing your hair out by the roots. They don't want to know. They watch the ball games, they watch the soaps, they watch all the movies, but they really, really don't want to know. It's rather sad and what you find too, that the frustration sets in because you have never been given ANY source to input any information INTO government policy YOURSELF. It's all been bypassed. This new system of democracy has bypassed the average, individual citizen. It's set up to take PRE-programmed NGOs as representing YOU. You don't VOTE IN the NGOs, the big foundations set them up. The foundations which are a front for the BIG, ELITE families of Europe and America, RUN THE WORLD. It's as simple as that. Politics, really, is left as a stage show for those who still believe in the tooth fairy. Unfortunately, lots of them still do... as we can see by the HYPE and the SHEEPLE, two legs good, four legs bad, then it changes to good. I'll be back with more after the following messages.

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through The Matrix. It's so massive. It's so many rooms in this big, artificial reality that it takes you an awful long time to work your way through them. We'll go to the callers now and we've got Rick from California. Are you there Rick?

Rick: Yes. Thank you Alan for taking my call.

Alan: Yes, go ahead.

Rick: I noticed in the Patriot Movement, a lot of people including Freemasons, stick up for Freemasons and they say, well the Founding Fathers are Freemasons and so... I call this the paradox of the Founding Fathers. That they would be for liberty and yet they were Freemasons and this is how I resolved it and I was wondering if you could comment on it. Whether I'm right or not. The Founding Fathers must have known that the powers of nature could be harnessed to make massive weapons of destruction like nuclear warfare. They must have known intuitively and then in order to develop the weapons needed to conquer the world, they would need scientific progress and in order to achieve that, they would have to have some FREEDOM for the scientist. You can't have progress when you lock up your Galileo and so with the full intention, you know, because they believe that they would reincarnate into their descendants at the appropriate time, that they would pull the rug out and take out the freedom. Then they would become the masters of the world.

Alan: What you need really, is a MASSIVE ENGINE TO WORK FOR YOU and the engine happens to be those in society. So you give them a fake freedom and a fake reality, a reward system, a Pavlovian reward system, and they will work YOUR DREAM into existence for you. We know that the Founding Fathers said that the United States would BE eventually A FEDERATION not only of the US but OF THE WORLD. It's true that they were all masons and many of them were into sciences. We find that Franklin was experimenting with electricity and batteries... the Leyden jar. We also find out too that Jefferson was involved in the first mass production of parts for weaponry rather than hand forged, hand made individual pieces. He was into the stamped steel type that eventually became popular. They were all involved in using sciences but they all belonged to a Masonic institution that had come out of the Rosicrucian movement and the Rosicrucian movement was called The Underground Stream. Meaning it always was there underneath society to an extent and they kept their secrets of science to themselves. They did work through science. They believed that, just like Francis Bacon with his New Atlantis, that America, this place that would rise in the West, would be the NEW STAR THAT WOULD GUIDE THE WORLD. The star, by the way, in their occult books, is called Merica or Meraca, which is America. That was written over 1000 years ago. The book itself, Bacon's one, was published in 1602 but written in 1588. In there he described the FUNCTION of this country that would have an elite, hidden group of scientists running the country - he meant social sciences too - but it would have a FRONT organization too for the general public, which we now call politics and politicians. They knew from the beginning what their role was to be. This goes all the way back into the old alchemists of the ancient Middle East and also the ones of the Middle Ages as well. They always swore to keep their secrets of science to themselves because by doing so they'd gain POWER OVER ALL KINGS and become indispensable for rulers. Thanks for calling.

From Hamish and myself, in Ontario, Canada, where it's been HEAVILY SPRAYED, very foggy, it's good night and may your God, or your Gods, go with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Vancouver police to get armour on wheels" by Anna Mehler Paperny, The Globe and Mail (at mobilizingmouse.com) - June 25, 2008.

"Big Brother potentially exists right now in our PCs, compliments of Intel's vPro" by Rick C. Hodgins (tgdaily.com) - Sept. 24, 2008.

"Microsoft to battle in the clouds" by Rory Cellan-Jones (news.bbc.co.uk) - Oct. 27, 2008.

"74 Years Since Oct Snowfalls - Deprogramming Global Warming" by Gabriel O'Hara (wiseupjournal.com) - Oct. 30, 2008.

Transcribed by Diana